SAINT - JACQUES "HYPE AND GAY"

Description:

Home to the Manneken - Pis, Brussels' most famous little inhabitant, the Saint- Jacques district is a bit like him. But one thing is for sure: the weather is always great at Saint- Jacques: on the outside cafés at the first sign of spring, or inside, in the warmth of the trendy cafés and stylish restaurants. A centre for the city's craftsmen in the 12th century, the area housed a hospital, placed under the patronage of Saint- Jacques. You can literally find everything here. Trendy fashion, vintage, artistic and sophisticated gadgets, book stores, comic strips and music... As for clothing, diversity is the first of the many qualities in this part of town, which nonchalantly mixes styles and tastes.

CHURCH OF NOTRE-DAME DU BON-SECOURS (BRUXELLES)

One of the most gracious churches of the Flemish Baroque period, it is nevertheless the most untypical of the Flemish style by its hexagonal form of its layout and its short naves. The facade is elegant and well proportioned. It is decorated with the emblazons of Charles de Lorraine. Stop on the way of Saint Jacques of Compostela.
